DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on March 1, 2006 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-3, 7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Janik (US 2005/0113946 A9) in view of Margulis (US 6,263,503 B1).

Regarding claims 1, 7, Janik discloses a system (Figure 1) for enabling digital audio data files to be played on a remote conventional audio device (stereo receiver 44), the system comprising:

a host PC (personal computer 34) configured to be connected to the Internet (Internet 8), said host PC configured to store digital data files and receive streaming digital files (PC 34 acquires, stores, and manages digital audio content, including digital audio files and digital audio streams from Internet 8 servers; page 3, para. 47);

a playback system including a base station (digital audio converter 32 is operatively coupled to PC 34 via access point 28) configured to receive said digital files from host PC and convert said digital data files to a predetermined format compatible with one or more conventional playback devices (digital audio converter 32 receives digital audio streams sent from the PC 34, decodes and de-compresses the digital audio in real time, converts it from a digital format into analog electrical signals compatible with a conventional stereo system 40; page 4, para. 50).

Janik differs from claims 1-3 and 7 in that it does not specify a receiver for re-broadcasting said audio files to the stereo system. However, Margulis teaches the desirability of using a repeater (RF repeater 414) to rebroadcast audio, received from a base station, to a conventional playback device so that audio signals can be reproduced in a separate room while maintaining transmission quality (col. 6, lines 38-56). It would have been obvious to an artisan of ordinary skill at the time of invention to incorporate a repeater, as taught by Margulis, within the system of Janik in order to achieve the same benefit, that is, rebroadcast audio signals transmitted by the base station (digital audio converter 32) to a stereo system located in a different room while maintaining transmission quality.

Regarding claims 2-3, in Janik, stereo system 40 includes a conventional stereo receiver 44 (page 3, para. 46), and digital audio converter 32 provides local FM broadcast radio (page 4, para. 58).

Response to Arguments

4. Applicant's arguments filed March 1, 2006 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant argues that "Janik is not prior art" because "the pending claims are supported by the parent application as well as the provisional application." The examiner disagrees. Independent claim 1 recites a base station which is "remote from said host PC" (lines 5-6). However, the parent application 09/649,981, which claims the benefit of U.S. Provisional Application No. 60/151,714, discloses a PC adapter which is connected to the host PC over a universal serial bus (USB) port (page 4, lines 10-11). There is no disclosure in the parent application of a "base station...remote from said host PC." Therefore, the pending claims have an effective filing date of November 8, 2000, which is after the effective filing date of the Janik publication.
